Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow:

The family is the smallest unit of people in a community or a society. The family consists of the father, the mother and their children. So, everybody comes from a family. The father and the mother are known as parents. The family that consists of the father, the mother and the children is referred to as a nuclear family. Even when the father (husband) and mother (wife) have no child, they are still regarded as a nuclear family. The children of the same parents are known as siblings.

There is also the extended family. This includes the parents of the father and those of the mother. The children of these parents too are part of the extended family. There are many other people in the extended family. These are called relations or relatives. For example, one's father's brother is one's uncle. The sister of your father or mother or the wife of your uncle is your aunt or auntie. There are many people in this category of relations. Such include grand-parents, grandfather, grandmother, grandchild, nephew, niece, stepfather, stepmother, stepson, cousin, blood relation, father-in-law, mother-in-law, brother-in-law, sister-in-law, etc.
